

My Reading Response Homework

One of your homework tasks this year will be to write a response to your reading once a week. The task will be related to a classroom focus and we will be having a practise in class beforehand so that you have an example to follow.

Here are the topics we will write about this term.

- Predict what will happen in the chapter you are about to read, then reflect and discuss whether your prediction was accurate.
- Make some meaningful connections as you read and write them down.
- Write down some questions you have while reading. Try to include different types of questions eg. Within the text, beyond the text, about the text.
- Write a detailed summary about what you read, including the main idea and important details.
- Write a short review about the book you are reading. What have you enjoyed about it so far? What haven't you enjoyed? Think about the story line, characters and setting. If you are reading a non-fiction text, think about the features of the text and whether it is engaging.

The focus of the task will rotate each week.
